ALLEN PLAYERS COMING IN "SO THIS IS LONDON"

To those of our theatre goers who have heard of the wonderful run of George M. Cohan's great laughing hit, "So This is London," recently in Vancouver, where it was presented for ten solid weeks to the capacity of the largest theatre there, it will be good news to announce that the same company which presented it in Vancouver when they created a theatrical record for all Canada, will be seen here at the opera house on Monday, October 18th, when they will present this international comedy success with the same scenic and other equipment used in Vancouver, when 100,000 people witnessed the production.

Of the Vancouver presentation, the papers there spoke in the highest possible terms. The "Sun" saying it was "a perfect performance, by a perfect company," while another said, "what a rollicking evening—just one delicious, long, lingering laugh."

And it will no doubt stir further ardor to the anticipated enjoyment of local theatre goers to know that the "perfect company," above referred to was none other than the well known and favorite Allen Players, with the ever popular Vera Pelton, Lee Millar, Frank Vyvan and the other principals so long associated with that competent organization.

The remarkable run in Vancouver, which attracted patronage from Everett, Bellingham and even Seattle, became the talk of theatrical people all over the continent, and put Vancouver solidly on the map from a theatrical standpoint, and as such a result could not have been possible with anything mediocre, the logical outcome is that the company is in demand and booked on its present tour in every city and theatre of standing from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

The story of the play itself is a delicious eye opener for the American who has an inborn dislike of Englishmen on the one hand, and the Englishman who has the same unreasonable dislike for the American on the other.

In a very, mirth-provoking way, it shows them, not only that they are all wrong in their misconception of each other, but that each of them are themselves greatly to blame for the other's misunderstanding. Hiram Draper, a typical American hustler, and Sir Percy Beauchamp, who is just as typical an English gentleman of leisure, following their preconceived dislikes of each other, finally become the best of friends and realize that after all the two branches of the same great race have similar ideals, and in every way are intended to work together for the common good. It is just the kind of a play which causes an audience to burst out into spontaneous laughter again and again repeated, and that too, without the slightest hint of buffoonery on the part of the players.

The situations are funny beyond words, and in the hands of the capable company soon to visit us have already proven irresistible to audiences all over the west, so it seems safe to predict that the company will add fresh laurels to their already enviable reputation during their visit here.

The Evolution Of An Empire

The forthcoming Imperial Conference in London to be attended by members of the British Government and the Princes of all the self-governing Dominions of the Empire is attracting more widespread interest than any of the preceding Conferences of a like character, with the possible exception of the one held during the war. Some writers and public men seem to think that notable changes in the relationships now existing between Great Britain and the Dominions will result but there is little ground on which to base such belief.

Since the secession of the American colonies and the American Revolutionary War of 150 years ago, the changing relationship between Great Britain and her overseas possessions has been one of evolution, not revolution. Great changes have taken place, it is true, but the process has been so gradual and all effected so peacefully, that they were hardly noticed at the time. Perhaps the most significant change of all took place when the overseas British Dominions became members of the League of Nations on terms of equality with the Motherland and other nations.

But this gradual development of a more autonomous and independent status has in no sense resulted in any weakening of the Imperial tie or in the solidarity of the Empire. The effect has rather been to add strength to the individual units and to the union embracing them all. The term "Empire" as applied to the British Empire is, in fact, a misnomer. Rather the phrase favored and so frequently used by His Majesty, King George V., more correctly describes what is commonly referred to as the British Empire, namely, the British Commonwealth of Free Nations.

There is no point at all in common between the British Empire and old Roman, French, Russian, German and Austro-Hungarian Empires. The fact that these old empires have passed away while the British Commonwealth of Free Nations continues united and stronger than ever only serves to emphasize the difference.

Evolutionary, not revolutionary, tendencies are still at work throughout the British Commonwealth, and it is to be expected that the approaching Imperial Conference will seek to clarify the atmosphere in regard to some matters. India is steadily moving forward along the path to increasing self-government, and Great Britain is not only willing but anxious to enlarge the powers of the people of India just as rapidly as the people become capable of wisely exercising those powers. The history of India will be largely a duplication of the evolution which has taken place in other parts of the Empire.

In South Africa the people appear to be somewhat concerned about the flag, and there is a considerable body of opinion in favor of a distinctive national flag for South Africa other than the Union Jack. But those who are most insistent for such an emblem nevertheless disavow any desire for or intention of a severance of the tie which binds them to Britain and the other British Dominions.

Canada is moving in the direction of appointing its own Minister to the United States with a view to having matters pertaining to Canada and the United States dealt with directly by the two countries concerned rather than through the intermediary of the British Ambassador and the Government in London. But here again, there is not the slightest wish for separation of any sort or even weakening of any strand of the tie binding Canada to the Empire.

Among people in all the overseas Dominions the view is entertained by many that the present procedure of carrying appeals from the Supreme Courts of the Dominions to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London might well be abandoned, and the overseas Courts made supreme in fact as well as in name, thus saving lengthy delays and large expense in obtaining final judicial decisions. But advocates of this change are amongst the most loyal of British subjects.

In the evolutionary process already referred to, one of the most significant changes has been in treaty making powers. Formerly, and not so many years ago, all treaties had to be negotiated and signed by the British Government, although they might have reference solely to one particular Dominion. Furthermore, all treaties made by Great Britain were binding on all the Dominions with or without their consent. Now, however, Canada makes trade treaties direct with foreign countries and they are signed in the name of the King by Canadian ministers. If Canada and the United States desire to make an agreement regarding fisheries, or some other boundary matter, the two countries do so and the resulting treaty is signed by Canadian ministers.

Furthermore, the British Government no longer makes treaties with foreign countries affecting the Dominions without first consulting them and such treaties are submitted to the Canadian Parliament for their approval and adherence.

Keeping well-defined present Empire relationships: "Daughter am I in my Mother's house, but mistress in my own." The British family tie holds, invisible, almost intangible, alien in texture, but strong and lasting as steel. Changing times call for other changes, in customs, methods, procedures, but the family remains intact, sympathetic, co-operative, loyal and affectionate, working for a common aim, proud of each other's achievements, united by a common bond, and joyfully giving allegiance to one sovereign. Thus does the British Empire grow, prosper and triumph.

A dispatch to the newspaper Nichi Nichi from Hakodate, Japan, says the Russian volunteer fleet association's ship Stavropol has arrived from Wrangel Island, where it removed the British and United States flags and raised the Red banner. Fifty Russian emigrants were placed on the island after a thorough exploration by aeroplanes. Turkey Meets First Statute

Mohammedan tradition prohibiting representations of the human form has been broken. The unveiling of a statue of Mustafa Kemal Pasha, President of Turkey, and one of the outstanding figures in Near East politics.

This is the first statue ever erected in Turkey. It represents the President in European dinner jacket, bare headed and with arms akimbo.

The breaking of Koranic tradition against statues of men and women preceded the going into effect of Turkey's new civil code, passed by the National Assembly six months ago. With this code all Koranic laws passed into oblivion.

SCOTT'S EMULSION
 SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES

Says Canada Needs Publicity

Money should be spent on Advertising Resources, Opinion of British Capitalist

Sir Alfred Mond, British capitalist and internationalist, who has ingested heavily in Canada, brings up a challenging message when he states that Canada's greatest need abroad is publicity. He tells of leading and supposedly well-informed British financiers who do not even know some of our greatest mines at all.

Our mineral revenues are growing each year but are still a small part of our total annual production. Dairies alone produce more than all our mines. To bring the yearly mineral production to two, three or four times the present figures will require the investment of millions, yet, a billion dollars is needed. This money we must get at home for investment; we have not it from abroad. If Britain and Europe have the money to invest we want to offer them the opportunity, but it must be offered. We must take it to them.

Money may well be invested by the provinces in making our mineral resources known.—Financial Post.

Salvaging Of Allied and Turkish Ships

French Alleges Under-Sea Bombs Have Been Desecrated

The salvaging of allied and Turkish ships sunk during the Great War is going on, the raising of the French ship Massena.

The Italian Salvaging Company, at work, and the Turkish Government have agreed to share the profits of the undertaking on a fifty-fifty basis except for the provision that any ships or ruins found in a sufficiently good condition to be repaired and used will become the sole property of the Turkish Government.

French opinion here, is indignant over what it terms Turkish desecration of French under-sea bombs. The raising of the Bouve, in which 600 French sailors and officers went down to death in the battle of the Dardanelles, has provoked some bitterness on the part of the French.

The British attitude toward the raising of the English ships sunk in the Dardanelles, of which one of the most notable was the Irresistible, has not made itself felt here.

Makes Coffee Truly Delicious

A Rich, Golden, Appealing Cup of Coffee Is Appreciated

Much coffee is spoiled in the making, but it is safe to say more is spoiled in the serving. This is because comparatively few people use real cream, figuring, perhaps, that its daily use is rather a luxury. Of course, one can rob the milk-bottle, by taking off the top milk, but even that is not calculated to give one the rich, golden, appealing cup of coffee that makes this beverage truly a nectar. More and more housewives are serving Eagle Brand Condensed Milk with coffee, for the reason that it is economical and because it imparts a beautiful flavor, being so rich and creamy. There is the further advantage that it saves sugar, for condensed milk contains sugar and the milk and sugar are so perfectly blended that the proportions are absolutely right. Usually, the condensed milk is placed right on the table, being served from the can, which, if desirable, may be set in a marmalade jar.

Blames Radio For Hurricane

Atmospheric Tension Said to Cause Earthquake in Cloud Masses

The fast multiplying activities of radio broadcasting stations were directly responsible for both the Florida and Vera Cruz hurricanes, according to Joaquin Gallo director of Tacubaya observatory.

Gallo's theory is that the constant emission of short wave length electrical charges into the ether by the activity of the thousands of radio stations built up an atmospheric tension, excited the cloud masses and put them into a condition to precipitate immense quantities of water, accompanied by severe wind and electrical currents.

The director is now engaged in experiments with a view to backing up his theory with convincing scientific data on the subject.

Giant Plane Tried Out

Germany Marking Series of Test Flights With Super Machine

A new Junkers double decker super-plane with a surface measurement of 100 square yards is being tried out in Germany in a series of test flights.

The body of this giant plane is nine feet two inches wide and comprises two platforms with a cabin spacious enough for 20 beds as well as for heavy baggage. Additionally there is a special freight compartment for the shipment of express and freight, the absence of which hitherto has been found a vital shortcoming in international air service.

Another innovation is an auxiliary engine room with a separate motor for lighting, for the accelerated filling of tanks, wireless and other services.

500,000 CHINESE FACING DEATH IN BESIEGED CITY

Manchou—Fanned up more than a month by the Red Cantonese armies besieging the city, 500,000 Chinese people face death by starvation, cold and disease in Wuhan. Large numbers of dead lie in the streets. Those remaining have eaten dogs, cats and rats and are dying in public places or dying miserably in shelters into which they have crawled.

The Northern troops of Marshal Wu Peifu, garrisoning the city, having been refused terms of surrender, are holding on desperately. Hospitals for armies of their ally, Sun Chuan-fang, to break through the Cantonese cordon.

Meanwhile the relentless and well-fed Cantonese outside the wall wait patiently on their arms, having blockaded all exits from the city and await the time when they shall enter. What will happen then is not known. A vestige of mercy has been shown. Beginning last Sunday, women and children of the impoverished classes have been permitted to pass through the gates to the river, seeking passage across to Hankow. Thirty-eight tons and have been rescued by boats bearing the emblem of Manchu to be carried for.

Scenes of horror are witnessed each trip of the boats. In the first of places on the boats several hundred have been trampled to death as the maddened hordes struggled for rescue. Many, thrown into the river, are drowned.

Only a few miles away are the troops of Sun Chuan-fang, ruler of the five provinces of Eastern China, trying to thrust aside the Cantonese who oppose their march to the relief of the beleaguered Wuhan. Seemingly relief will come to the Wuhan defenders within a few days.

The Toronto sitting, it is expected, will be followed by others at border points in Canada, and then the commission will likely go west.

Curative Powers Of Sun Pasadena

The curative powers of the sun's rays are to be greatly increased during the next year, according to Dr. Edna Pitts of Mount Wilson Observatory here. He has announced he has found that the ultraviolet rays of the sun, the part of the sunlight that cures some diseases and also causes burn, are to be more numerous in 1927. This is caused, he said, by the increasing spots on the sun.

Wheat Pool Payment

Final Payment On 1925 Wheat To Be Made Soon

Winnipeg—Several millions of dollars will be distributed among the farmers of Western Canada, members of the Wheat Pool, shortly.

The final payment on 1925 wheat delivered by members of the pool in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta probably will be announced early this week. A. J. MacPhail, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, and vice-president of the Cooperative Selling Agency, will announce the date from his Regina office, according to information secured at the Manitoba Pool office.

Mr. MacPhail is the chief official now in Canada, the others being in en route to Australia. The Canadian Pool has already made three payments totalling $1.45, while many farmers are now enjoying the initial payment of $1 on the 1925 crop. Deliveries of the 1925 crop, however, are far behind last year's, owing to the wet weather. The total deliveries in Western Canada so far this year are about 40,000,000 bushels. Very little grain has been received from Alberta, but Saskatchewan has contributed 25,000,000 bushels, and Manitoba about 15,000,000.

Omar, a Persian poet and astronomer, died in the first quarter of the twelfth century.

Krasin Returns As

Envoy For Soviets

Seeks British Gold For Rehabilitation Of Russian Industry

London—The return of Leonid Krasin to London as Soviet envoy is thought to make the beginning of a new phase of Anglo-Russian relations. M. Krasin, as he admitted in a general interview with the British press, comes seeking money for the rehabilitation of Russian industry, and as he is a keen business man he realizes it cannot be obtained unless serious arrangements for the repayment not only of the new, but the old debts are made immediately.

His return is due to the culmination of a long series of secret negotiations with persons who, while not directly representing the conservative British Government, are in close touch with it. The conservative government is very anxious to resume friendly relations with Russia for the sake of the Russian market, which, it is afraid, may go to Germany if the resumption of relations with England is long delayed. However, Prime Minister Baldwin still insists on a settlement in principle, at any rate, of the old debts. It is believed Russia is now willing to do this if not called on to pay too much and too soon.

The British also are disposed to insist on some guarantee that Russia will cease to interfere in the domestic affairs of Great Britain, and is willing to give a guarantee not to interfere in Russia. This means Russia must promise to cease financing labor troubles in England.

PROBABLY NO OPPOSITION TO KING MINISTERS

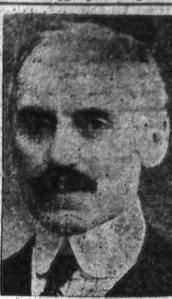

Ottawa—Conservative political observers expressed the opinion that there will probably be no opposition by their party to the re-election of any of the Liberal ministers at the coming by-elections on November 5, made necessary by the formation of the King cabinet.

While no official announcement has been made, it is intimated, however, that the final decision is a matter to be dealt with by the Conservative executive in the various ridings affected.

The belief that Liberal ministers will be returned, without opposition, insofar as Conservative headquarters are concerned, is partly based upon an official statement issued recently from former Premier Meighen's office that the presence of Premier W. L. Mackenzie King at the Imperial conference will be facilitated as far as possible.

Already advice has been received from Regina that Conservatives there will offer no opposition to the re-election of Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals. There are rumors, however, of possible opposition by local Conservatives to Col. J. L. Ralston, in Nova Scotia. In the event of his appointment to the portfolio of Minister of National Defence.

Steamship Lines Feel German Competition

Lines Being Taken Off New York To Hamburg Run

Montreal—Competition from German steamship lines operating to New York from Hamburg is said to be responsible for the projected withdrawal in the near future of several British companies from that run. The White Star line, which operates the Arabic on a five weeks schedule to Halifax and New York, return being made direct to Hamburg, took this ship off the run after her departure from Hamburg October 2. The liner will be employed on the Antwerp, Southampton, Halifax, New York service, her sailing from New York October 20 being direct to Antwerp and the next from Europe will be out on the Belgian port.

The S.S. Andania of the Cunard Line has been on the Hamburg, Southampton, Cherbourg, Halifax and New York service, but it is expected she will be taken off on the completion of her schedule which calls for a sailing on October 26 and another on December 1 to Halifax and New York.

No change is being made in the Canadian Pacific sailings to Hamburg.

Sir Alan Cobham Is Planning Trans-Canada Flight

London—Sir Alan Cobham, upon being the honor of his flight was conferred a day ago, in recognition of the famous aviator's series of world-renowned flights, will visit Western Canada some time in the near future. It is stated in reliable quarters here, Cobham is planning a trans-Canada survey flight, in which he will visit many points in the Dominion. No definite date has yet been set for this projected trip, but it is said to be one of the flight plans entertained by the British ace for the near future.

The Daily Express today said that Cobham was contemplating a trans-Atlantic plane flight and that it would likely follow a lecture tour throughout North America. Plans for this flight have been under consideration for some time, the paper stated.

Sir Alan Cobham, who recently returned to London from a round trip to Australia, in which he proved conclusively the feasibility of such long distance flying if experienced aviators and worthy planes are employed.

LORD BYNG IS INTERVIEWED ON REACHING HOME

Southampton—Lord and Lady Byng arrived at Southampton on board the Empress of France, which was gallantly decorated with bunting. The former Governor-General of Canada and Lady Byng were officially welcomed by the mayor and sheriff, and then his lordship received a large group of western papersmen.

One of the first enquiries put to Lord Byng by the press representatives was with regard to his constitutional power as Governor-General, which question was also recently in connection with the political situation at Ottawa.

"I think we had better leave that alone," said Lord Byng with a laugh. "Everything turned out very satisfactorily. If the question is raised at all again it will be at the Imperial conference, but at the present moment there is nothing one can say about it. As I say, it all worked out very well."

Asked about the recent Dominion general election Lord Byng expressed the opinion that the result of the election was mainly due to the popularity of the Robb budget, with reduced taxation, and to three good harvests.

Lord Byng spoke with enthusiasm of the prospects which Canada opened to British people who were prepared to work hard there.

Some of the newspapermen asked Lord Byng about the national status of Canada and the possibility of the fusion of the Dominion with the United States.

"There are extremists in every part—Imperial extremists and Canadian autonomy extremists," His Lordship replied.

"Is the union of Canada with the United States possible?" was another question asked of His Lordship.

"A union of friendliness, most certainly," replied Lord Byng, who throughout the interview stood the utmost inpatient and good humor. "You need not worry about Canadian extremists on this side of the ocean," he added.

Touching on his relations with the politicians at Ottawa, Lord Byng said: "I have been Governor-General between Conservative and Liberal ministers have been at the head of affairs, and my relations have never been anything but of an extremely friendly nature with everybody."

BRITISH MINERS REJECT OFFER OF THE GOVERNMENT

London—The delegate conference of the Miners' Federation, as overwhelming majority, rejected the Government's offer to create a national arbitral tribunal for the settlement of the differences between the miners and mine owners, and by an equally large majority voted in favor of the withdrawal of the safety men from the mines.

Thus the Government passes out of the dispute, temporarily at least and the owners and the men are left to fight out the struggle between themselves.

The delegate conference adopted a resolution rejecting the Government's proposals for a settlement of the strike after the announcement of a district vote, which opposed the proposals, 72,000 to 12,000.

The South Wales resolution to withdraw the safety men was adopted by the delegates 54,000 to 194,000.

The government had already made it plain that unless its offer was accepted by the miners, it would be withdrawn immediately. The principal feature of the offer was governmental assurance that if the miners returned to work they would be accorded governmental assistance in obtaining a nation-wide agreement, which is one of the important demands of the miners.

The decision of the miners was taken in the face of practical exhaustion of their resources. In addition, their position is daily becoming weaker by the day. It is a matter of time, to work. Withdrawal of the safety men, if put into effect, is considered likely to cause serious trouble not only in the mines, but between the strikers and those desiring to return to their labors.

Father Tried to Compel Dismissal of Son From Factory

Vienna—A labor dispute attained an unusual extreme in Vienna when the father of a young carwright, Ferdinand Reikort, struck with the remaining 150 Socialist workmen at the local Fiat automobile factory to force the management to discharge his son, who is the only employee belonging to the rival Christian Social Union. The management refused the workers' demands, but settled the strike by giving the younger Reikort work outside the factory.

Their reasons are private and deal only with liquor administrative methods.

NEW ORGANIZATION
PLANS TO FURTHER
BETTER HIGHWAY WORK

Automobile owners of Alberta are now provided with effective and practicable means of furthering their own interests, obtaining protection in the way of legislation, advancing the cause of better roads and building up a mutual service organization which will offer the same facilities that any commercial enterprise is able to provide at greatly reduced cost.

This new organization is known as the Alberta Motor League and Good Roads Association. Its keynote is co-operation. Its benefits and privileges will extend to every part of the province. Its members will be affiliated with the united motor leagues of all the provinces of Canada and with the various automobile associations of the United States.

The Alberta Motor League was formally launched into active organization work at a meeting held in Edmonton recently. Representatives were present from many parts of the province, and all expressed the utmost enthusiasm in promoting the interests of such a mutual service organization. Some months previously, the charter for an association of this nature was obtained by automobile club officers of Edmonton and Calgary, and as a result of the recent meeting the league will henceforth be an important factor in the life of the province.

Foremost in the plans of the organization will be the furthering of better highway work in the province. Legislation affecting the interests of automobile owners will also be looked after. Embellish will be supplied all members and as rapidly as possible steps will be taken to supply road maps and touring information, together with a magazine or publication to represent the league as an official organ. Tourist traffic will be encouraged. Road marking will be carried out as extensively as possible, and the organization looks forward to the time when the membership will warrant the establishment of a touring service and many other benefits to members.

The important public service work now being carried on by the local automobile clubs of Edmonton and Calgary will be continued as subsidiary organizations of the Alberta Motor League, and encouragement will be given to the formation of local clubs of the league in other centres of the province where sufficient membership can be obtained to make the local unit effective. Membership from anyone in the province will be accepted at a minimum of $5.00 per annum. Where local clubs exist, they will retain $3.00 of the annual fee and remit $2.00 to the central offices.

It was unanimously agreed that the Alberta Motor League would become a member of the Canadian Automobile Association, at the suggestion of Dr. P. E. Doolittle, president of the C.A.A., who has worked indefatigably for the building of the trans-Canada highway. He outlined the advantages to be obtained by Alberta members travelling elsewhere in Canada and in the United States by being affiliated with the national organization. One Ontario member saved $450 in actual fees and saved thousands of dollars in deposits and a considerable amount of time and worry when touring Europe through his membership card in the C.A.A.

MARK DRUMM TO BOOST
LINCOLN CARS IN VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Drumm, residents of Calgary for over a year, spent Tuesday night in Westmorland while on their way to El Centro from a trip through the Mojave Desert and other points in Northern California. Mr. and Mrs. Drumm met many old friends while on their tour and best of all, Mr. Drumm had the pleasure of meeting her brother, who is an officer on the Battleship Pennsylvania.

Mr. Drumm, who was advertising manager of the Calexico Chronicle last year, returns to the valley and will be connected with the Edgar Bros. at El Centro. Mr. Drumm will assume charge of the sales department of the Lincoln line of automobiles and his territory will embrace the entire valley. He is a good salesman and made a wonderful record when he had charge of a large district for the Studebaker people. The Edgar Bros. are indeed fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Drumm because it is a foregone conclusion that he will make good and dispose of a large number of Lincolns in Imperial valley. METHODIST CHARGES REFUTED
BY MODERATION BODIES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The recent assertion of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist church that government control of liquor in Canada is working unsatisfactorily was challenged last night by W. H. Stayton, head of the association against the prohibition amendment.

A telegraphic statement from Wallace Howe, secretary of the moderation league of Alberta, was made public by Mr. Stayton in support of his contention. The telegram said: "Today's local papers carry a report of a survey of conditions regarding working of government liquor control acts in Canada made by Ernest A. Grant, for the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church. So far as Alberta is concerned, I say positively the 'deplorable conditions' pictured do not exist. The act is working well; nor is there any 'moonshine problem.' Police court records prove this. Moreover, out of seven local option votes taken during the past month, six went by good majorities and one dry by two votes. If you wish I will mail a full report. Am anxious to clear Alberta of this vile calumny."

"Our own advisers," Mr. Stayton asserted, "are that conditions in other parts of Canada are as described in the Alberta statement. This, however, cannot be expected to prevent periodical repetitions of misstatements on the part of self-appointed guardians of public morals in the United States. There are hopeful signs in the growing knowledge of the falsity of so many of the claims in behalf of the national prohibition reform laws in this country by their ardent supporters, especially when such a government agency as the department of justice confounds them with its recently issued statement of national increase of convictions for violations of the prohibition laws in the last fiscal year over the preceding."

Canada has now ten thousand square miles of the most magnificent territory in the Dominion set apart as national recreation areas. Few countries in the world have made such generous provision for out-door recreation and pleasure.

of the new league, with A. B. Mackay, president of the Calgary Auto Club, secretary. Steps will be taken by the directorate to establish various districts of the league throughout the province and to initiate an active drive for membership during the next few months, each membership to run for twelve months from the date received.

DEFINITE GOAL IN VIEW
IMPORTANT ESSENTIAL TO ONE'S SUCCESS

The first essential to success is that you should know yourself, your innate capacities and what you are capable of doing. Most of us study our friends more than we do ourselves, and could pass a better examination on their qualities than we could on our own. We are all born with definite abilities which want drawing out and training. In many men, and especially in many women, they remain latent and hidden, simply because the circumstances have never arisen which would have drawn out the native ability.

The man who is engaged in work suited to his natural capacity will learn the work readily, without effort, it will be a pleasure to him, he will be happy doing it, and he will be more likely to achieve success than if he is a square peg in a round hole. Even overwork will not fatigue him. —Dr. Bernard Hollander.

Fire Prevention Week was observed at Cardston by a member of the school board turning in the fire alarm at the school. The school was emptied of seven hundred children in two minutes. No warning had been given any of the teachers or pupils, so it took a little while for it to "soak in" that a fire alarm was really what the fuss was about.

THE PASS, PUBLIC AND HIGH SCHOOLS FIELD DAY

One of the biggest days in the annals of local sport was held on the athletic grounds here yesterday afternoon, when the pupils of Bellevue, Hillcrest, Frank, Blairmore and Coleman public and high schools held their first annual field day.

The field was literally packed with visitors and under the direction of the teachers and others the program was carried through in a very able manner.

The pupils of Bellevue produced winners in most events and carried off the highest number of points, their total being well over that of any other school.

THE F.T.E. CLUB

The dinner given by the F.T.E. Club, of Fernie, on Tuesday evening, of last week was a marked success. During the course of the evening plans for the inauguration of a community centre in Fernie were thoroughly thrashed out and the club, by unanimous vote, placed itself definitely behind the movement.

The institutional centre, idea originated in the words of the club. The club was first organized last March. Its growth has been phenomenal. To an active membership of sixty-nine, ten new members were added at the banquet. Several additional applications for membership have been handed in since then, and, growing at the present rate, by Christmas the club will number in the neighborhood of two hundred.

The executive early realized the necessity of acquiring suitable quarters for the club. A suite of rooms in the old Methodist church building would be just the thing, except that it would involve heating the whole building. It was at this critical juncture that the scheme for an institutional centre was advanced.

At the Tuesday dinner fifty members met to discuss the plan. Representative business men from outside the club were also in evidence, among the invited guests being H. A. Bryant, William Gates, A. W. Harrison, V. Z. Manning, Daniel Markland, W. R. Pepper, Thomas Prentice, Rev. Wm. Rieley, A. B. Sanborn, E. K. Stewart, and J. R. Wallace.

The proposition was discussed from all angles. A. I. Fisher, who led the discussion, spoke fearfully of our duty to the rising generation, and it was generally agreed that there was great need of an institutional centre.

On motion of Mr. Phillips the club resolved to sponsor the cause, and at the suggestion of Mr. Douglas a committee was appointed to solicit funds to make necessary alterations in the Methodist church to fit it for community purposes.

It has become known to a few old friends that Sir Percy Beauchamp and Lady Beauchamp with their daughter Elinor, and accompanied by Lady Duckworth, who owns the adjoining estate to their near Brimshot, England, will be among us for a few days, arriving here in the course of the next week or ten days during a leisurely trip they are now making from the Pacific to the Atlantic seaboard. Co-incidental with their stay here, they write, that they are delighted to learn that they will have the opportunity of seeing "So This is London" by such a capable company as will be here at the same time—as they remember with what great enjoyment they witnessed the play during its initial run at the Prince of Wales theatre in London. They intend to be, without fail, "amongst those present."

LETHBRIDGE HERALD-L.Y.P.C.A. ANNUAL ROAD RACE

On Thanksgiving Day, November 8th, the annual road race organized by the Lethbridge Herald and the L.Y.P.C.A. will be run at Lethbridge over the usual three mile course.

This race was first instituted three years ago and is open to all amateur runners in the province who reside south of the town of Alderside. The magnificent challenge cup, presented by Senator W. A. Buchanan, of the Herald, was won by Mr. Elmer Scott, of Medicine Hat, last year, and we understand that he is again entering. Enquiries point to having several dark horses in the senior classic this year, and those in charge anticipate a keen struggle for the first place.

There is also a boys' race in connection with the big event, for boys between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be presented to the winners of first, second and third places, respectively, in each race.

It should be noted by intending entrants that the possession of amateur cards for competitors in both races is essential. Application forms for amateur cards can be obtained from the district secretary, Mr. W. J. Martin, L.Y.P.C.A., Lethbridge, Alberta, and a fee of fifty cents should be enclosed when returning the filled-in application form to him. Entry forms for both senior and junior races can be obtained from your local

Duke Charmed With Rockies

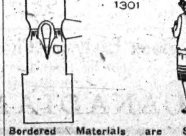

The beauties and charm of the Canadian Pacific Rockies have registered strongly upon the tourist, the trail rider and the mountain climber and of the many expressions of appreciation received at the tourist department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the following was received from Duke Dini of Leuchterburg, Count de Beauharnois, who journeyed with the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies during their recent annual ride from Lake Louise. From Banff he writes:

"I am terribly sorry that this wonderful summer is coming to an end. This country is certainly one of the most beautiful and widest I have ever been in. Lake Louise is really an ideal spot. I shall have about 2,000 feet of the most prettiest spots of the region surrounding Banff and Lake Louise. We are about to start out for Mt. Aspidochelone where from we shall go to the Yoho Valley."

The Duke is a direct descendant of Charles, Marquis de Beauharnois, who governed Canada in the name of the French King Louis XV, between 1728 and 1747. He travelled from Cherbourg on the G.P. liner Melita, meeting his cousin, the Marquis d'Albini to take part in the 34-day ride of the Trail Riders.

Immigration and Balanced Production

By G. W. Ferguson

Every now and then objections are raised to policies having for their object an increase in Canada's population, on the grounds that we have not yet completely solved our industrial unemployment problem and, therefore, should not add to our present difficulties. Such objections are based on a complete misapprehension. They would undoubtedly be valid in fully developed, overpopulated countries, but that line of reasoning cannot consistently be applied to a new country like Canada. One family placed on a farm will create employment for from one to two additional families in our towns through its own consumption of commodities, machinery and the like, and through producing the raw material of urban industry.

The recent European war and its aftermath brought home to the world a multitude of strange economic facts, many of them as old as the hills, but up to that time wholly unrecognized. One of the outstanding lessons taught mankind was that there is absolutely no limit to the amount of work to be done in this world, or to the amount of business to be developed. The truth is that over-production is inconceivable. The purchasing power of every country lies in its own power of production and the more each country produces, the greater may be its trade with other countries, and the more they all produce together, the greater the variety of comforts and necessities available for the world's population. We have not even approached within measurable distance of satisfying reasonable human wants leave alone over-supplying them.

What Canada, and many other countries, has suffered from during recent years, and what has given rise to general unemployment, is not over-production, but unbalanced production. While Canada's population has been unequally distributed, our aggregate working force has been, and still is, vastly below our minimum national requirements. With millions of acres of the world's richest agricultural lands lying idle and undeveloped, and the world clamoring for food, it is paradoxical to harbor an unemployment problem. Widespread unemployment under such conditions is prima facie evidence of bankrupt statesmanship.

In so far as sufficient intelligence and energy has not been focused on the solution of a problem which obviously lends itself to correction by well known and proven methods, namely, the augmentation of our productive agricultural population, which would speedily and full time employment for our industrial plant.

MOSES HONORED IN HIS DEATH

Golden Text: Precious in the sight of Jehovah is the death of his saints. Psalm 116:15.
Lesson: Deuteronomy 32:45-52; 34:5.
Devotional Reading, Psalm 116:1-19.

Explanations and Comments

1. Moses Exports the People To Observe the Law, 32:45-47. The work of Moses was over. He earnestly charged the people to remember all the words of the law which he had given them and to command their children to keep the law.

The natural and the appointed places for children to make the acquaintance of God is their own home. The most powerful and persuasive place for declaring the awful sanctities on religion is the family life of our ordained parents. I would prefer the early guidance of the illumined father and mother to the instruction of all the state teachers and official priests in Christendom.—(Dr. J. H. Jowett).

"For it is not a vain thing for you, because it is your life." In these words Moses reminded them how very important to the people which they were to observe—they were not trifles, but matters of life and death. "Through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land, whither ye go over the Jordan to possess it."

If you would enter into life, keep the commandments! (Jesus).

CHAPTER XVI.—Continued

As Yvonne moved through her rooms, with a word here and a nod there, her eyes sought a single face. When she failed to find it, she spoke to the butler who stood at the post in the reception hall. The man gave her the information she sought.

"Mr. Brandon has just arrived, Madame."

She went at once, stopping only for a subtle challenge to a judge who that day had delivered from his bench a heavy homily upon the frailty of a modern mother, to a door that led off from the reception hall into a tiny room which, after the Continental fashion, she called a morning room, reserved for her own exclusive use.

Brandon stood by a cabinet with a telephone and glass in his hands. He turned to greet her.

She went directly up to him. He gave her an intimate glance, that not only appraised her, but estimated every article of her.

For an instant she swayed toward him, yielding as he pressed, but she recoiled in his face that he would not take her in his arms. She was immediately self-possessed. Gaily she fluttered her fingers across her own lips and then touched them, lightly, to his. "Am I pleasing to my lord?" she demanded, dropping him a mock curtsey.

"That's an idle pretence, that question," he replied. "What you really want to know is, are you tempting?"

"A woman never asks that," she returned. "She needs no help to satisfy any such curiosity."

"I fancy that point might be argued," he observed, "but we will compromise. You are very beautiful, which pleases me, and very alluring, which gratifies you. What more shall either of us desire?"

Some quick reply, perhaps a reminder of some sort, hovered at her lips, but she spoke unspoken. "Nothing, else," she said, "and thank you. If I have done my own attractions justice, perhaps you will agree that I have done even more—because I have made two women beautiful, tonight, for your satisfaction."

"You mean the girl, of course, but her?"

She looked up at him, steadily. She spoke softly. There was no trace of bitterness, or even accusation, in her tone, but there was something feline in it. "I believe you are going to tell this girl to pieces, if you can. Whether it is because you do not approve the bizarre method someone has used to lift her up, or you merely want to pull her down, I don't know. I think there's something stronger than that in your mind. But I am of the opinion, my dear, that it won't be so easy!"

When she paused, she turned away from him slightly. There was a tinge of color in her pale cheeks.

"You are absurd," Brandon said evenly. "And, I think, just a bit piqued. It is a delightful mood. If one of us should make the girl unhappy,

I fancy it is more likely to be you than I."

She gave him a bright smile. The color had gone from her cheeks, and she was tanning again. "Now you are accusing me of the possibility of jealousy. I'm never jealous of my friend. Not, even, for I served you willingly in luring her into my keeping. Teddy Dornmaster and Roddy Kenilworth already are devoted to her. Teddy has assured me he's willing to trade all his married women, in one grand bunch for her, and Roddy declares that she is more refreshing than champagne. So you must admit I'm generous—two of my devotees already are at her feet. And you are hovering about them. I shall—"

She paused. For some reason she decided, suddenly, to both light a cigarette and point toward the cabinet where glasses and bottles were. "A little wine, please," she commanded.

When he had brought her glass he said:

"You were about to say something interesting. Finish it."

"I was about to add that probably I shall learn some things I really want to know, because of Joanna, but they will be interesting. Come. It is time she made her entrance. Everybody has had just enough to drink to fully appreciate her."

Together they passed into the reception foyer. Through the wide flung doors, in which palms were banked, strains of dance music floated down from an orchestra hidden on a miniature balcony that crowned one end of the high ceilinged room reaching off on either side from the upper landing of a broad handsome stairway, that sloped down majestically into the drawing room itself. "A woman always looks her best when she is descending a stairway," was one of Yvonne's pet assertions. She had had this one especially built into her house.

At the fringe of the dancing crowd in the larger room Dornmaster and Roddy Kenilworth talked together both men searching the throng of guests for their hostess. Lord Teddy sped her, and Brandon, immediately. Both asked for Joanna when they had hurried to pay their compliments. "A little patience," Yvonne remonstrated. And she admonished them: "There must be no stealing her away for selfish confidences. I want her to know everyone, tonight."

Brandon touched her arm. "Here is someone who will make his own rules, perhaps, about an hour: alone with her," he said, indicating a young man, who had just dismissed his hat and coat to the doorman and who, at the same time, a stranger in a strange house, seemed not to know what to do with himself.

Yvonne did not know the new coher, and looked at him curiously. Like the other men, he was in evening clothes, but in his manner was that intangible something which betrays the one whose full dress is only an occasional necessity. Always quick with her appreciative Yvonne decided in a dash, that the stranger would not be one, if he were cornered, with whom a woman might safely play.

She was amused with herself, however, for admitting such an idea into her mind, and puzzled by the other, Brandon, who had greeted the other, brought him to her for presentation.

"Mr. Wilmore," he said. "You have heard me, and no doubt, Miss Manners speak of him."

Yvonne, with characteristic impulse, gave him both her hands, a gesture which brought a flash into his face. Her voice and smile were warm. "This would be John," she said. "You see I have heard Joanna call you that. She has been very eager for your coming. She is just about to make her first appearance."

John plainly was ill at ease. He had expected Joanna to be waiting for him, and for him alone. He was not prepared for this sort of introduction into her new surroundings. Brandon chatted with him easily, and brought up Kenilworth and Dornmaster. "They have both begun to be amusing to Miss Manners," Brandon explained. "So far, we are her main circle of acquaintance."

The music that came down from the balcony suddenly died away, leaving a confusion of voices that ends a dance. Already women who should drink champagne, and men who insisted that they do, were giving hints of the effects of it. But as unexpectedly as the music had subsided, there was a general commotion, and then a hush. The four men, John among them, stepped through the palm fringed doorway and into the larger room. Yvonne, completely beautiful, a striking figure in the shimmer of her black and the sparkle of the diamonds at her throat, stood a few steps on the stairway. Her voice, silver tinkling in it, floated over the assemblage, the assemblage of those who were good and not so good.

"My friends," she called to them. "I am in a daring mood tonight. Just now, and why, some of you will determine quickly. I am about to present to you something that is very fresh, and new, and fresh, and something eager to be shaped into the best fashion of the day. It is just a girl whom I have taken very close to me and who I think that she should be like me. Some of you will disagree with her, and, perhaps, plan to make her different. Others will have ideas of their own. I commend her to all of you—and am curious to know whether it shall be you, or her, who profits most."

She raised her jeweled hand, the murmur of wondering voices grew, and gave a signal.

A Defense Of Gossip

Keep. More Men Straight Than The Police Do

I am possibly the only man living who has spoken a good word for gossip, which keeps more men straight than do policemen.

A thief does not fear gossip, but a halfway respectable man does, and looks it. Gossip is a tremendous power in regulating the better institutions. Ask a banker: gossip may ruin him over night.

We get the truth in gossip; rarely in newspaper's speeches, and scarcely in the vicissitudes, but it is also free and candid; by wedding out the palps exaggerations, we get the truth.

It's a pity the law does not hear of evil acts as soon as the neighbors, but it does not, and we are entitled to protection while the slow-moving law is getting out a warrant and summoning witnesses; most of whom will not testify as candidly in court as they do on the streets.

This protection we get from gossip. If gossip declares up and down the street today that a certain man was last night seen entering a certain house where he had no business, he will keep away from there tonight.

Finally the gossip will get around to the sheriff, and, if of sufficiently serious nature, he will investigate tomorrow.

A man named Pinkerton has a reputation as a detective. All the fact Pinkerton reports to the prosecuting attorney or grand jury have been dug up by gossip.

A Natural Conclusion

A young bride-elect was ordering her trousseau in London before going out to New Zealand to be married. The dressmaker suggested only very warm clothing, and when the bride declared, asserting that the climate was beautifully mild, she was immediately informed: "I assure you, madam, you are mistaken. New Zealand is where the frosts most come from."

Dress For Comfort

And Not Appearance

Radio Artists Mostly the Reverse of Smartly Dressed

It is perhaps as well that radio listeners do not see the artists who are performing, else pleasing impressions might be dispelled. Listeners do not know how they look, but with a beautiful soprano voice or a heavenly tenor or is easy to picture a beautiful lady or a romantic figure of a man.

Not so. Someone who is behind the scenes has been talking, and it is said that the artists mostly are the reverse of smartly dressed and look nothing like the part they are enacting. Famous ladies are reported to be attired in a manner more fitted for comfort than appearance, and tenors who thrill the audiences with passionate lyrics from the operas, are described as coming to the microphone with their coats and vests off, minus collar and tie, and with the neck of their shirts rolled back. The reason given is that formal or stage attire hamper their vocalism.

Yet there is a famous tenor who always puts on a dress suit when he sings before a microphone, although nobody sees him except the officials at the broadcasting station. When his friends laughed at him he said: "When I am nicely dressed I feel good and I can sing with more enjoyment. My unseen audience gets better results accordingly."

There is a great deal to be said for that. Everybody knows the tone effect of new clothes or of putting on a "dress suit." There is a mental reaction to smart attire, which shows it self in buoyancy of heart and therefore one "feels good."

When a singer isn't making the best of his song over the radio, we may feel like bawling into the microphone "Go and put a dress 'suit' on."

The Speed of Hurricanes

Bulletin Explains Why Accounts of Velocity Vary

Many people have been puzzled how to reconcile the apparently widely different accounts of the velocity of the wind during the West Indian hurricanes that struck the southeastern coast of Florida last week-end. They read in one place of winds moving at the rate of 120 miles an hour, and in another that the centre of the hurricane passed over the country at the rate of forty miles an hour. A bulletin on hurricanes issued by the National Geography Society of the United States not only explains the peculiarities of hurricanes, but provides answers to various questions that occur to the interested student.

"Hurricanes," the society's statement says, "are not winds that drive straight ahead. They are swirls of the cyclonic type. These swirling storm centres move relatively slowly across land and sea, sometimes at no greater speed than eight or ten miles an hour. But they suck air towards them from all sides at terrific speeds, up to a hundred or more miles an hour! These West Indian hurricanes, anticipated every year on the Gulf coast, are probably as old as the Atlantic ocean and the North American continent. The first storm of the kind on record 'devastated parts of Cuba in 1494.'"

Says Civilization Is Killing Off Indians

Thrives as Savages Declares Woman Physician in Alaska

Civilization is rapidly exterminating the Indians and Eskimos of Alaska, Dr. Anna S. Kearsley, thirteen years a physician among natives of the territory, declared in Seattle.

"The white man's civilization is ruinous to the native," she said. "They want to be civilized, and the government wants to civilize them. But they seem to absorb all the bad things of the white man's life and none of the comforting good things. They should be allowed to remain in their former wild state, to hunt and fish, as they did for ages, in the open. Not one in a hundred is benefited by education. Their habits are uniformly filthy and unsanitary when they attempt to live as white men. As savages, they thrive. As wards of the government they are dying out."

Dr. Kearsley has worked in United States hospitals for the Indians and Eskimos at Wrangell and Sitka.

German Soldier Has Returned War Loot

Truck Silverware From Chateau Where He Was Billeted

The mayor of the town of Ham, near Amiens, which was occupied by the Germans during the war, has received a bulky, heavy-registered package (postmarked Altona, Germany). The official feared it contained an infernal machine and had frozen unopened; the box.

Inside was discovered a quantity of silverware, knives, forks, spoons, and plates with 1000 pieces of silver.

"I was a German soldier billeted in a chateau near Ham during the war, and I took these things as souvenirs. I am ignorant of the name of the owner of the property, but he doubtless can be identified by the crown jewels in the silverware. My conscious hurts me and I am hereby returning the property."

The authorities of Ham are seeking the owner of the silverware.

GIRLS AND WOMEN NEED RICH BLOOD

This Lady Found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a Friend Indeed

Just because she is a woman there are times when every woman needs help and strength in the form of a blood-building tonic.

To thousands of girls and women, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved a blessing because they enrich the blood, give strength and restore tone to the aching nerves. The anemic girl who is languid and pale, the wife whose back feels like breaking; the mother whose strength falls as she teaches middle age—for all such sufferers, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a valuable remedy. Because blood is the life of women, it is usually caused by poor blood or insufficient blood. These pills have proved a blessing to thousands of others, why not you? At various stages of life Mrs. G. R. Lake, Walton, Wis., has proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:—"I first used these pills when a young girl. It is due to their use that I have never had a day of my life when I have not been able to do my share of the work of the world. And again, now that the childhood stage is past and I am a mother, I take up my share of all the cares and worries of the home. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the only tonic I take to keep up my health and strength, and they have never failed me. Should any ailing girl or weary mother, I use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I know they will find them as equally good as I have found."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
